

NATIONAL CAPITAL TO CELEBRATE PRESIDENT'S RE-ELECTION TONIGHT

Federal Eight Hour Com- mission Begins Work Un- der Injunction Threat

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The biggest demonstration yet given in honor of President Wilson's re-election will be held here this evening when 50,000 persons are expected to march past the White House. It will be Washington's greatest torchlight parade. Battalions of automobiles, floats and mounted squads are to be in line.

President Wilson and members of his official family will occupy a stand in front of the White House, where the president will review the crowds.

The demonstration, which was arranged by the Wilson and Marshall club here, will be joined in by all local democratic clubs, government employees, school boys and girls, business organizations and labor unions. The parade will start at 8 o'clock from the Capitol and move directly to the White House. It is expected it will take three hours for all to pass the president's reviewing stand.

The eight-hour commission, headed by Major George W. Goethals, which was created to attempt to solve the railroad wage problem in the United States senate, is today laying the final plans for its work, although indications are that the body is to become entangled in a maze of injunctions before it can accomplish its purpose.

General Goethals said today he fears the work of the body will be checked and interfered with on every hand by the suits filed by railroads attacking the Adamson eight-hour law.

Present plans of the eight-hour commission are for a series of sittings at New York City with occasional sessions in Washington and Chicago. The commission is now preparing lists of witnesses to be called.

President Wilson today re-appointed Edwin S. Sweet as assistant secretary of commerce. Sweet resigned this position in October to become a candidate for governor of Michigan on the democratic ticket. He was defeated.

HUGHES' CHANCES NIL

California's Count Shows No Material Change from First Report.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 16.—With the official presidential count in California nearing completion after three days uninterrupted work by county boards of supervisors and boards of election commissioners, Charles Evans Hughes' chances of seriously impairing President Wilson's unofficial plurality of more than 3,600 are virtually nil.

In Los Angeles county, figured upon by the republicans as almost certain to show important errors in the unofficial tabulation favoring the president, gives Hughes a gain of 195 votes. To this may be added 14 more in case all the returns from precinct No. 388, where three votes more than the registration are thrown out.

In San Francisco Hughes has made a net gain of 50 votes with 321 precincts out of 634 yet to be checked.

In Alameda county 212 precincts out of 410 give Wilson a gain of 18 votes.

These counties are the only ones in which any serious errors were anticipated, the official count in the other counties showing little variation from the unofficial returns.

LAWYER IN MOURNING OVER WILSON VICTORY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 16.—Charles H. King, a prominent Memphis attorney and republican, is paying an election bet by sitting in an office decorated with crepe and other paraphernalia suggestion of a house of death. King bet a friend, Hughes would be elected. The stake was permission by the loser to let his office be decorated in any way the winner might choose. King lost. His friend decorated his office in mourning.

SCARED CHICKEN T.U.S.T.

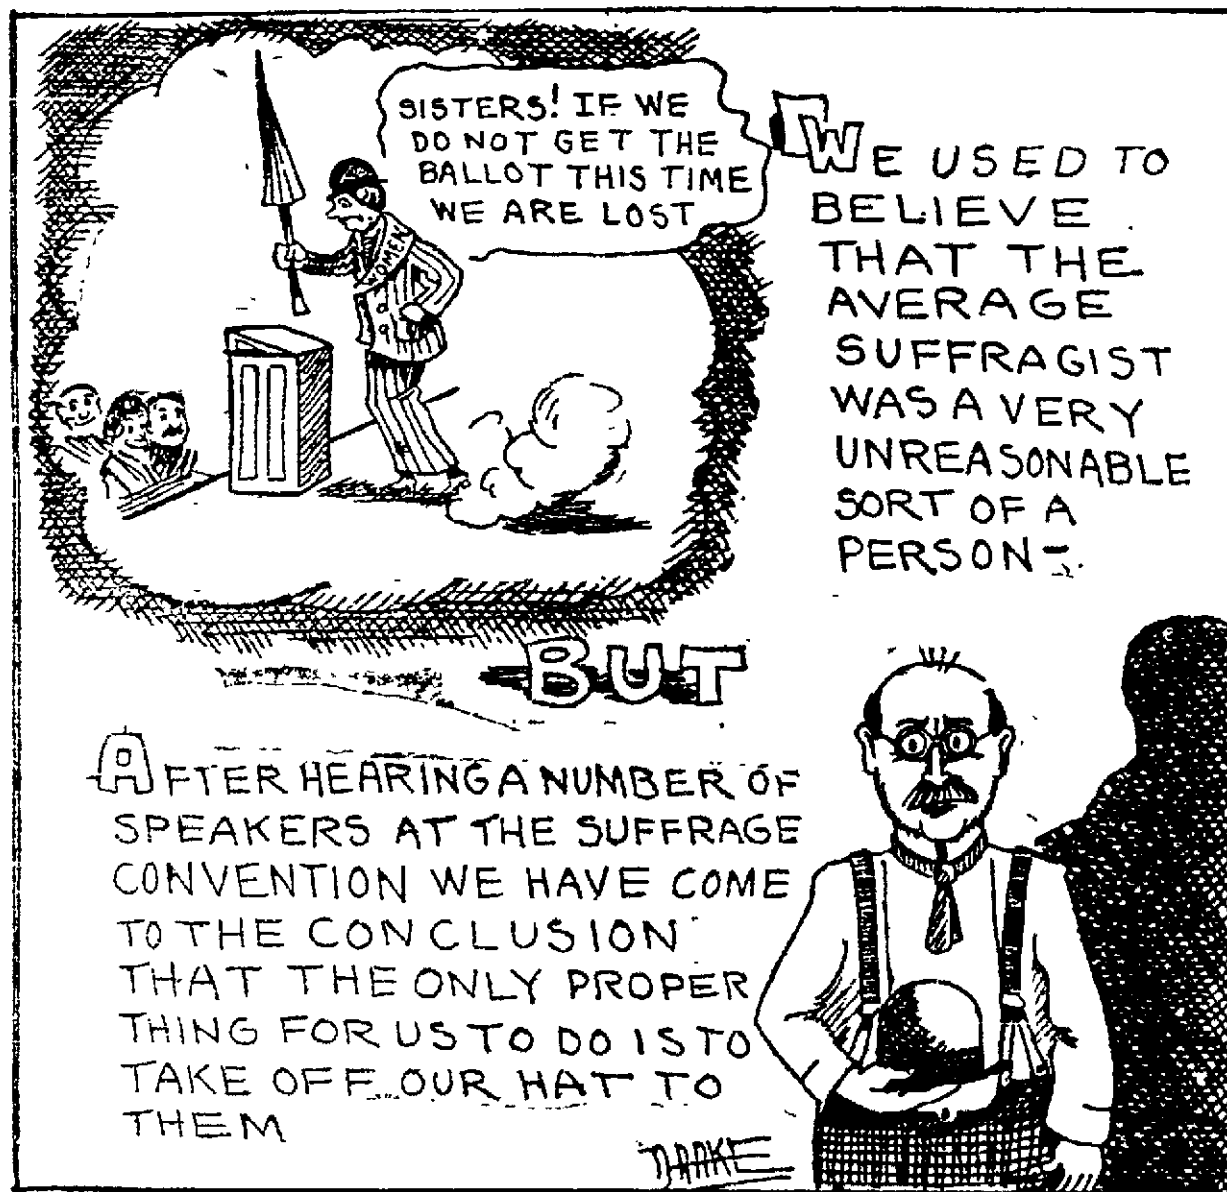

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The high cost of chickens in New York has been reduced by seven cents a pound as a result of the voluntary dissolution of the so-called poultry trust, it was announced here at the district attorney's office, which investigated the recent jump in prices and threatened prosecutions under the state anti-trust law.

BANDIT IS WOUNDED.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Four masked men attempted to rob the saloon conducted by Ernest Haage in the northeastern section of the city late last night, and as a result one of the bandits and Haage were probably fatally wounded.

Germans Retreat at Monastir

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

MRS. KENT HUGHES IS ELECTED SECRETARY OF SUFFRAGE BODY

Women Hear Report on Line-Up of Ohio Congressmen On Equal Rights

SUFFRAGIST OFFICERS.
President—Mrs. Harriet Upton, Warren.
Honorary President—Mrs. Francis Casement, Fairview.
First Vice President—Miss Zara du Pont, Cleveland.
Second Vice President—Mrs. Dora Sandoe Bacom, Columbus.
Third Vice President—Miss Anna B. Johnson, Springfield.
Recording Secretary—Mrs. S. J. Brandenburg, Oxford.
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Kent W. Hughes, Lima.
Treasurer, Mrs. Zell Hart Deming, Warren.
Member Official Board—Mrs. O. F. Davisson, Dayton.

With the announcement of the names of new officers of the Ohio Woman Suffrage association for the coming year, was the name of Mrs. Kent W. Hughes for the position of corresponding secretary. Mrs. Hughes had the distinction, or we should say, the rest of the official board had the distinction, by their right of not being new officers, of being the only officer not re-elected.

By the acceptance of Mrs. Hughes, the office of president for the Allen County association has been left vacant. According to Mrs. W. E. Crayton, prominent suffrage worker in this city, an election for president of that organization will be held as soon as the association can meet.

The morning session was devoted chiefly to the report of the Political committee, the chairman, Mrs. Upton, opening the discussion with a paper in which were told many amusing incidents relative to her attendance at the republican national convention, held last June in Chicago.

She said that early in the year when the republicans began having rallies with the idea of bringing back the progressives, her committee attended these dinners (in the galleries) and "enjoyed watching the politicians eat, and like Alice Ben Bolt, 'wept with delight when they gave us a smile.' We were really the parsley around the ham, and were as plly rewarded if any speaker referred to 'the decorations.'" in the sub-committee (afterward this decision was reversed by the general committee). "Let us not hate Paul Howland; we are all above hate; but let us always remember that he acted with our enemies in our deciding battle and can never have a pension of love from us."

Mrs. Upton, Re-elected President for Sixteenth Year.

Friendly, indeed, is the attitude of the suffragists toward the democratic party, and well they might be, when they consider that the democratic party has been friendly in no small degree to them. They no doubt, even remember with pride, the occasion upon which President Woodrow Wilson took a special from Washington to Princeton, in order that he might cast his vote in their favor.

Although Mrs. Upton declared that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was a "vicious anti," his opinion was little in the face of the approval of the whole of the democratic party which pledged to support the cause.

This political committee included the following: Miss Elizabeth Hausler, Mrs. Brooks, Miss Moriarty, Miss Allen, Miss Norris and Mrs. Upton. Their duties are to organize their respective districts for regular work and interviews. Also to watch and report on their respective congressmen. These chairmen are appointed by the state organization committee with the approval of the state executive committee. However, the organization chairman suggested that hereafter the chairmen of the committee would do only political work and be placed under the direct control of the political committee.

mitties of the congressional poll on the national amendment and women scored many of the men because they did not come out and publicly announce their opinions, and when asked to answer to the questions. "How do you stand for woman suffrage?" and "How will you vote?" they generally said they stood one way and voted another. However,

MYSTERY DEEPENS IN CASE OF SLAIN GIRL AT PONTIAC

Parents and Sister Are Held Under $10,000 Bond to Grand Jury.

PONTIAC, Ill., Nov. 16.—Upon a simple tailored blue walking suit may depend the solution of the murder of Miss Christine Diemer, whose body, with broken neck and fractured skull, was taken from the Vermillion river here following her disappearance October 27. Her father, mother and sister are under $10,000 bonds pending action by the grand jury.

The suit was worn by Miss Diemer while she was being treated at a sanitarium. She became obsessed with the idea that it was contaminated and demanded that it be burned. On the night she disappeared the suit went too. It was not on her body when it was discovered. The theory advanced by the family is that she went to the river, 100 yards from her home, to destroy the suit during the night, and was attacked by some one and slain. Search is being made for it today along the river banks and in the water.

A blood-stained club with hairs clinging to it may prove the weapon with which she was killed. Her brother Ray turned it over to the coroner, explaining he found it two days after his sister disappeared, but thought nothing of it until the body was found. A pair of woman's shoes coated with mud, such as that of the river bank, was found on the porch of the Diemer home. The family declared the shoes had been in the basement for a long time and recently had been brought out and never worn.

SERVIANS DRIVE ENEMY BACK ON MACEDONIA FRONT; GET PRISONERS

Mightiest Armies Locked In Death Grapple On Four Lines In Europe

TEUTONS STRIKING BACK

LONDON, Nov. 16.—All the war along the bloody highway of battle, which writhes its way through four theaters of war from one end of Europe to the other, fighting is in progress today of ferocity such as the world has never known. The gigantic armies of the world's mightiest empires are locked in a death grapple in quadruple engagements.

On the western front, in the Somme district, the new action, which developed on Monday with the supreme effort of the allies to break through to Bapaume, is raging with an intensity that takes no count of human loss. Each side is struggling with attack and counter assault for mastery.

On the eastern front the Russians have begun a fresh attempt to storm their way through to their main objective—Lemberg.

Rumania is surrounded by the thunder of battle. Fresh troops are pouring through the mountains of the north and amidst craggy heights of the Transylvania Alps a million men are deciding the fate of the Rumanian kingdom.

In Macedonia, where the allies are trying to pound the German allies northward and liberate Serbia the fiercest fighting centers about Monastir, the chief objective of French, Russian, Serbian and Italian armies. After a battle which has lasted incessantly for weeks and which neither storms nor darkness lulled, the Bulgarians and Germans have been forced back over the blood-soaked mountains.

The allies are now almost at the gates of Monastir, but their pathway has been marked by milestones of corpses.

The losses in all these great battles in the four theaters of war are staggering.

The British war office reported this afternoon that, apart from the bombardment of British positions by the Germans both north and south of the Ancre, there is nothing to report.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Serbian troops have captured the villages of Tuzay and Onilles, southeast of Monastir, according to a Renter despatch from Saloniki today. The Serbs took 800 prisoners.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Counter attacks south of the Somme river last night again gave the French complete possession of the village of Pressoire.

The war office communique today stated that the portion of the village occupied by the Germans yesterday has been recaptured by the French.

BERLIN, via Sayville wireless, Nov. 16.—The German and Bulgarian troops defending Monastir on the southeast side have retired from the Tchernia river sector to new positions which had been previously fortified, says the German war office today in a report on Macedonian operations.

GERMANY STRIKES BACK.

Resistance in West and in Rumania Shows Strength.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Germany's power to strike back under unfavorable conditions is shown by the heavy blows delivered within the past 36 hours on the western and Rumanian fronts.

As soon as the battering ram drive of the British began to slow up the Germans launched a strong counter offensive both north and south of the Somme, which gained for them ground in the sectors of St. Pierre Vaast wood and Pressoire.

While the Germans were attacking the French the German guns were pounding the villages of Beaumont Hamel, St. Pierre d'Yvon and Beaumont, where the British had established themselves.

General Haig's men, after sweeping forward almost to the Grandcourt-Miramont line, directly west of Bapaume, suddenly found themselves under heavy crossfire which compelled them to stop and consolidate their newly won positions. During the night, while shells rained around them, the British dug in, working like beavers digging new communications trenches and dugouts, and strengthening the old German works which had been blasted by British shells.

Just at the time when the allies had hoped their quadruple offensive early this week would remain intact to the end of the war, it is expected that the Italian government will reciprocate by liberating the Germans, in turn, in Italy, but no such promise has been given.

As the Austro-German army fighting to get possession of Camp Lung at the edge of the Rumanian plain, is within a few miles of its objective. In the Dobrudja arena of operations von Mackensen was compelled to fight desperately to hold his strategic positions.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—Both Great Britain and France are to be put on war rations. An order in council, issued today, gives the government control of foodstuffs and creates a new government department to regulate the supply and the prices. The British food dictator probably will be Lord Milner. The British people are to have meatless days and will be put on a diet of "war bread" to conserve the supply of wheat. All luxuries are to be banned. Not for a century have there been such drastic restrictions as will be imposed during the next few months.

The French government has not yet taken any decisive steps, but despatches from Paris today indicated that it would quickly take action similar to that under way here now.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—More than a million men and 5,000 guns are engaged along the 40 miles of the Somme front in the most savage fighting the world has ever known. While these gigantic armies roll backward and forward over the shell-scarred fields guns more ponderous than ever seen before thunder in the rear, pouring their curtains of steel. Behind the fighting lines are tens of thousands of reserves ready to plunge into the bloody maelstrom as their comrades die or fall from exhaustion. Ever ydeth dealing instrument known to twentieth century warfare is in use. Gas and lead shells spread death and suffering in their most dreadful forms.

SUES FOR DIAMOND LOST ON A BLUFF

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 16.—"Bluffing" doesn't always pay. Albert Krause, for instance, is trying to replevin his $75 diamond stud, which he sold for a quarter. He was being examined in the Wyandotte district court, having filed suit for $3,000 against the Kansas City Railways Company as a poor person. "What's that you're wearing?" asked the attorney for the car company, pointing to a stone in Krause's scarf. "Pure glass," answered Krause. "Cost two bits and I'll sell it at cost if you want it." "I'll take it," answered Miller. Added to that, Krause's suit was thrown out of court, the judge holding he had no right to sue as a poor person.

The merger will have no effect on present prices, it was announced.

NEW ORGANIZATION FORMED BY YOUNG MEN INWAYFARERS

Launch Inside Club to Aid Practice in After-Dinner Oratory.

Monthly Feasts to Stimulate Interest in Extempore Speaking.

Another organization of young men was added to Lima's list of social clubs last night when 41 members of the Wayfarers' club dined at the Barr hotel and formed a new body, inside the Wayfarers, to foster practice in after-dinner speaking, extemporaneous oratory and kindred accomplishments. Although the original plan of the organization was to provide a side club for the older members, giving the younger boys an incentive toward self-development, the plan has been altered and as many of the 150 Wayfarers as show a genuine interest in the work of the club will be admitted to membership. After an 8 o'clock dinner, addresses on the aims and purposes of the new club were made by Edgar A. Meek, Austin Potter, Paul T. Landis, Frank N. Wallace, Ralph P. Mackenzie, Charles Reichelderfer, Paul Davis, Glen Butler, Christian P. Morris, Seward G. Folsom, Walter D. Barnes, Gale C. Dunifon, Austin O'Connor and Don M. Burton. The latter presided as chairman.

A loose form of government was decided upon by the body, with only one officer, the secretary. Edgar A. Meek was chosen for this position, and the chairmanship will rotate among the members in alphabetical order. Dinners are to be held every month. The name of the organization is to be decided at the next meeting, but the favorite appears to be the "Bojourners." This is deemed logical for an inside organization among the Wayfarers, as sojourning is the rest after wayfaring.

Loud cheers greeted the announcement that Don D. Johns, a member of the club, is celebrating the arrival yesterday afternoon of a seven-pound girl. A collection quickly provided enough cash to buy young Miss Johns a suitable gift.

Those present were: Harold M. Allard, Walter D. Barnes, Warren D. Basing, John W. Beall, Jr., David W. Bowman, Don M. Burton, Glen S. Butler, Chester M. Cable, Francis Clark, Paul D. Davis, Walter G. DeWeese, Gale C. Dunifon, Tad Evans, Weldon Evans, David Felsner, Seward G. Folsom, Romeo Fusaro, Joe Gooding, Stuart Green, Earl W. Hoop, Carl Isham, Dick Jenkins, Val Kohl, Paul T. Landis, Stanley W. Latner, William B. McClaren, Robert McClellan, Holmes Mackenzie, Ralph P. Mackenzie, Raymond Manier, Don Maus, Edgar A. Meek, Christian P. Morris, Austin O'Connor, M. Austin Potter, Charles Reichelderfer, Calvin F. Selfridge, William G. Sheffield, B. E. Sims, Boyd Simpson, Fred W. Simpson, Ed Wallace, Jr., and Frank N. Wallace.

COAL CARS TO BE DISTRIBUTED MORE FAIRLY IN FUTURE

Railroad Association Formulates Drastic System to Relieve Shortage.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The American Railroad Association came to the aid of a long suffering public today and put into effect a drastic system for the more equal distribution of coal cars. It is the lack of such a system which is blamed for the present coal famine in many parts of the country. The chief feature of the system provides heavy penalties for road keeping cars which do not belong to them. A fine of $2 will be exacted for each car for the first day overtime and the fine is increased one dollar each day.

The association selected a committee consisting of President C. E. Markham, of the Illinois Central, Vice President H. E. Bryan, of the C. & O., G. L. Peck, of the Pennsylvania, and W. G. Bester, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, to go immediately to Louisville and "sit in" at the hearing on the situation there under Interstate Commerce Commissioner McChord. The committee was instructed to pledge its full support for any relief measures.

The plan was, according to the police, to telegraph some person of means for money signing the name of some friend or relative whom the victim knew to be out of town. In most cases the money was forthcoming it is said.

COUNTRIES AT WAR.

Those who attended the stereopticon lecture given last Friday evening in the Olivet Presbyterian church were well pleased with the entertainment throughout. This first of the series of lectures on "The Countries at War" was on "Germany and Why She is Strong," showing her marvelous development, organization, resources and military power, illustrated with about 60 beautiful slides. The second lecture of the series will be given on Friday night, Nov. 17, in Olivet church, beginning at 8 o'clock. The lecture will be on "France and the Marshall-Laise." It will consist of 50 views, illustrating the effects of the French Revolution, its contribution to the cause of liberty, and the weak points in French development. All should avail themselves of this opportunity of getting in touch with the actual conditions in this great country. No admission will be charged. The public is cordially invited.

Johnson, who used to drive the automobile ambulance, climbed in and got the stranger clear. A few minutes after the man thanked the patrolman, Dr. L. C. Pennywell reported the theft of his car.

The session closed at 12:30 o'clock, after the report of the resolutions committee was given by William McPherson of Columbus. This was to have been given at the afternoon session, but it was brought over into the morning session in order that an address by Miss Rose Moriarty, a prominent Ellyria woman, would have more time.

The afternoon session opened with the final report of the elections committee, by Mrs. C. H. Simonds. Mrs. Roger Perkins gave a report of the literature committee, which was well received by the audience. The following are the convention committees: Credentials Committee—Mrs. Zell Hart Denning, ex-officio chairman, Warren; Mrs. Maud Upp, Amherst; Mrs. Philip Merrill, Cleveland; Mrs. Cornelia Gibson Riebel, Lancaster; Miss Lucy Hall, Ashtabula.

Elections Committee—Mrs. C. H. Simonds, chairman, Cincinnati; Miss Eda Ball, A. Lima; Miss Abbie Donovan McNally, Columbus; Miss Mar, Gay, Akron.

Finance Committee—Miss Lillian Frost, chairman, East Cleveland; Miss Mary L. Rice, Warren; Miss Vanna Linn, Lima; Miss Eleanor Bell, Lima; Miss Lillian Taylor, Lima; Miss Inga Johnson, Lima.

Resolutions Committee—Mrs. William McPherson, chairman, Columbus; Mrs. O. F. Sadler, Akron; Mrs. I. M. Weaver, Mansfield; Miss Minnie Giddings, Jefferson; Mrs. B. F. Hadley, Del. bus.

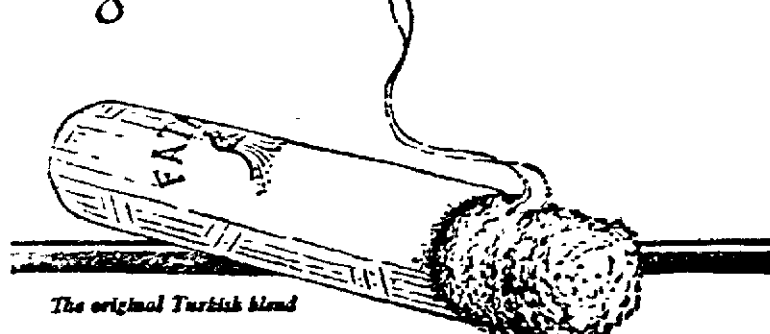

Plans of Work Committee—Mrs. Howard B. Hucksins, chairman, Oberlin; Mrs. S. J. Brandenburg, Oxford; Miss Katherine A. Norris, Youngstown; Mrs. N. M. Stanton, Dayton; Mrs. H. G. Newman, Van Wert.

Co-operation and organization are emphasized all through the conference, by the speakers. They urge work on part of the committee for the state, and work on the part of the state for the national cause. However, since no organization can thrive without material aid, in the way of appropriate financing, ways and means were discussed, especially yesterday afternoon, for obtaining funds. A motion was also made and carried for the institution of dues. Mrs. Malcolm McBride in her report of the national budget, which was one of unusual excellence in the way of clearness, made the assertion that greater work could have been done during the congressional campaign if the workers had not only been more organized but better financed.

Distinct strides, however, were noticeable in this convention over the one two years ago held at Columbus. That year 23 counties out of 88 had reported, and this year there are 34. According to Mrs. McBride, the ideal basis for an increase organization would be an increase of $1,000 per month with a paid organ or in every congressional district. That summer sales, strawberry festivals, and so on were not to be despised for means of raising money for the cause, was another assertion made by this speaker.

That this address had a good effect upon the audience was shown in the pledges which were given at the close of the session. Among the pledges were those of Greater Cleveland, $1,000 and 10 per cent of all money raised for all local work; $500 from Mrs. McBride for the financial department; $500 from

BRYSON'S SHOES NOT YET FILLED

Service Director Mothman stated this morning that it would probably be some time until the successor to City Engineer Bryson was appointed. He stated that he intended to give the matter careful thought before deciding on the new man. It is likely, however, that Assistant City Engineer Miller or Engineer Cupp will be selected to fill the position. Bryson will leave for California Monday and until a successor is appointed the assistant will head the department.

NEWSON'S

STILL A FUGITIVE

Surrounding Towns Not
of Power's Escape Last Night.

No one in the town of Lima, Ohio, has been notified of the escape of the fugitive.
The fugitive is still at large and is being sought by the authorities.

Dr. Clarke, superintendent of the institution, stated today that all surrounding cities had been notified of the escape and cards will be printed with a description of Powers.
The ward in which Powers has been confined, was painted yesterday, making it necessary for his removal to another part of the building. When, with other patients, he was being led to supper last night, Powers disappeared, climbed to the roof of the building and made his escape. He was brought to Lima from the Massillon institution after he had attempted to escape there.

PAYS FOR CIDER WITH CONFEDERATE MONEY

MACON, Mo., Nov. 16.—Confederate money will still go in some parts of Missouri. A man stopped at Jake Grubb's farm, northeast of Macon, and asked Grubb to fill a couple of bottles with cider. On delivery of the cider the stranger tendered a $10 bill of the sort that Johnnie Rebs used in war times.
Then the man started to run off.
Grubb took after him. It was a lively chase, but Grubb was finally winded and cried out: "Don't you want your change?" The man stopped, and when he saw Grubb pulling his pocket book instead of a revolver, he went back. "I'll have to charge you 40 cents for that cider," said Grubb; "price has risen. Here's $9.60 in change. Did you forget?"
The stranger apologized, said he was a little absent-minded about money matters, took the change and went on his way. After the bill was protested at the grocery the constable of Jeff Davis currency.

NAVAL BATTLE SEEN
BY PASSENGERS ON
CUNARD, OCT. 26

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Fifty passengers of the Cunard liner Andania arrived here today with thrilling stories of the naval battle between British and German destroyers near Dorset, on the night of October 26.
The passengers had grand-stand seats for the battle. The Andania left London on the 24th, but anchored near the Downs, when warships were received that to Germans were near.

Two nights later the battle was fought, and the flashes of the big guns could be plainly seen from the decks. All during the night the firing continued, but by dawn all had disappeared and the vessel proceeded to Plymouth for coal. There, they said, they were informed the British lost eight trawlers, two destroyers and an empty transport in the battle.

The Andania ran into a terrific storm in mid-Atlantic, the worst Captain Nelson said, he had seen in 25 years.

DETROIT CENTER OF DOPE IMPORTATION

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Charges that Detroit is the hotbed of contra-which met to authorize a widespread search for a successful treatment.

"On every ferry-boat leaving Windsor drugs are aboard," says Metz. The committee voted to ask the Rockefeller and other institutes to investigate habit-forming drugs and recommend an adequate remedy for their extinction.

A NEAR DISASTER

Because the Wilson lead in the normally Republican state of California is small, many Eastern leaders of the G. O. P. are finding consolation in the fact that the former justice from New York "almost" defeated the president. We beg to differ with this expression. Candidate Hughes has had a narrow escape from a complete disaster, and only the electoral college prevented him from going down with a crash hitherto unequalled in American political annals. Note the slight leads which the Republicans obtained in some of the less populous states of the Union:

States	Electoral Votes	Pluralities
Connecticut	7	6,691
Delaware	3	1,379
Indiana	15	7,294
Maine	6	5,663
Minnesota	12	2,98
Rhode Island	5	4,806
South Dakota	5	5,443
West Virginia	8	2,027
	61	33,601

Here we see that 33,601 votes gave Mr. Hughes 61 votes in the electoral college. Had it not been for these few thousands in states which are generally Republican, Hughes would have had only 194 electoral votes, with the president standing at 337. That would have made Hughes the worst defeated candidate of the G. O. P. since its formation in 1854, with the exception of Taft in 1912, an abnormal contest.

About 18,000 votes, properly placed, would have brought about the defeat of Hughes in all of these states. As it is, the electoral college system hands him 61 votes for 33,601, or more than two and a half times the electoral vote of Ohio for a popular plurality just two-fifths that by which Wilson carried Ohio. If there is in this showing any glory for the G. O. P. it is very well concealed.

HARD TIMES?

Observers of things financial are often quoted as saying the condition of the railroads is the key to the condition of the country. While there are many restrictions qualifying such an estimate of economic affairs in the nation, it is true that the transportation companies reflect, in an eminent degree, the image on the nation at large.

Three years ago we were told that business was bad and that the railroads were taking desperate steps to reduce their operating expenses. On many divisions of the great transportation systems the best trains were removed and the service cut down to an extent which greatly inconvenienced the public. For a while the excuse of poor business deluded many individuals, but after a time it was found that most of the companies were still making large profits and that the reduction in service was a move to spare the government into relaxing the two-cent fare regulation to some extent. And since that time the old service has been restored in practically every line.

On the Columbus-Indianapolis branch of the Pennsylvania there are now two new trains, the speediest on the division. Neither was run before the alleged "depression" of a few years ago, but both have been put on after only slight efforts from the interested cities. This gives to the communities along the route an additional day service, and all without asking. If the railroads reflect the condition of the nation there must be a boom coming, despite the panic cries of G. O. P. calamity-bowlers just prior to November 7. "Temporary prosperity" decry by Hughes begins to take on a more permanent aspect since the election of his opponent.

HI JOHNSON

With the results from California there comes a renewed interest in the one "Biggest Man of All" in the Golden Gate State. Elevated to power after a meteoric career as a young man, then out of the national eye temporarily, Governor Hiram Johnson returns to claim the attention of the entire country.

Johnson got his start as a prosecutor. When Francis J. Heney was cleaning up San Francisco and breaking the power of Abe Reuf, an attempt was made to assassinate Heney. He was wounded and temporarily out of the trials, but Johnson volunteered to proceed with the prosecutions without pay. Previous to this he had made a name for himself by breaking the control of the Harriman railroads along the waterfront approaches to the leading cities of California.

His services in prosecuting the Ruef-Schmidt gang made Johnson governor. In 1912 he was one of the sincere leaders of the Progressive party, and delivered at but two of the electoral votes of this G. O. P. stronghold to Roosevelt. This year he was a candidate for the United States senate, but his power was ignored by the Old Guard G. O. P. leaders of the East. The people of the Golden Gate state resented the snub handed to their idol and voted for President Wilson, meanwhile rolling up a plurality for Johnson in excess of 300,000.

Harrison Gray Otis and the reactionary forces in California cry that Johnson sold out, and that he must shoulder the blame for the presidential victory in the state. Only the voters of the state are responsible, however, and in their choices of Democratic electors and Progressive senator they showed rare powers of discrimination. But it makes Hiram Johnson a national figure—a big man in the senate, a powerful factor in the entire West and an element to be reckoned with by the Eastern leaders of the Republican party. Wall Street will consider Johnson the next time there are any Western states to be carried. His strength is proved by his vote for the senate.

Hawaiian music may be all right, but any good thing can be overdone. The trouble with the islands is that they have so few songs that the American movie musicians and cabaret banjoists have to repeat their repertoire to death.

Ohio is threatened with a special session of the legislature. Willis evidently hopes to get a parting crack at the state for repudiating him.

Now that California and Minnesota have been disposed of, we can turn our attention to Dobrudja and Cernavoda. They are still in the doubtful column.

As was predicted early in the campaign, it will probably be a cold day when Hughes admits defeat.

GOOD EVENING: Don't try to fool anybody with last year's overcoat—the odor of mothballs "will cling to it still".

FARMERS MARKET THEIR OWN TIMBER.

By selling their lumber in local markets, woodlot owners often realize much greater profit than they can get from dealers, and at the same time they make good wages for themselves and teams during the winter. In one instance a farmer made nearly twice as much by lumbering himself.

This owner was offered $4 a thousand feet for his standing timber. He sold the lumber later in a nearby city, cutting and hauling it himself, and made $7 a thousand feet, or $1,200 more than a dealer offered him. In another case, the owner realized $10 a thousand feet by his own lumbering.

WASHINGTON, C. H., O.—William Milestead, a boy hunter, killed a monster wildcat in a thicket near this city. Two hounds, trailing a rabbit, cornered the wildcat, which killed both dogs in the fight before Milestead came up. He fired both barrels of his shotgun into the animal before it ceased fighting. Farmers in the vicinity say the wildcat has been making destructive raids on pigpens and chicken-coops.

LITTLE THEATRE IS MAKING ITS WAY WESTWARD IN U. S.

Is Attempt to Popularize Plays Out of the Ordinary.

Latest Project Starts in St. Louis Under Suspicious Circumstances.

By Frederic J. Haskins.
 ST. LOUIS, Nov. 16.—Westward the Little theatre takes its way. Starting its career in Paris and London it jumped to New York, paused for breath and leaped to Chicago. Now it is about to make its appearance in St. Louis, in its most ambitious form.

The Little theatre wherever you may find it is the protest of the elect against the commercialization of the drama. It is a project for the production of plays of the sort that people who shun musical comedy call worth while and attend; and that most people call highbrow and keep away from. Hence it is a little theater; and hence also it is rarely a financial success. The St. Louis Little Theatre however will not be dependent on the patronage of the general public for its existence. It starts life in a building of unprecedented magnificence and convenience—for a Little Theatre—and that building is paid for to the last night. The financial success of future performances is similarly assured by subscriptions to tickets for the coming first season. Here is an enterprise which does not have to cater to the hypothetical predilections of the tired business man.

The Artists' Guild of St. Louis, a local organization of painters, writers and sculptors, mingled with individuals who pursue more commercial careers and doubtless earn more money, is responsible for the newest Little Theatre. The Guild considered the brief and checkered career of the Little Theatre as an institution in various big cities, and evidently decided that it is asking a great deal to expect a Little Theatre to make money. The Washington Square players of New York seem to be prospering, inasmuch as their projects are more ambitious year after year, and they are now sending out a road company, but on the whole the weight of experience shows that the Little Theatre, presenting plays selected for literary and artistic merit, is rarely a financial success.

The Artists' Guild, however, was not considering a commercial proposition. After double purpose was position. Their double purpose was to provide place where certain traditions of the drama might be upheld and where they might see plays of the kind that they like to see. To settle the financial question they turned in and raised the necessary money by subscription among themselves and their friends. A love of the better drama that can finance a playhouse like this Little Theatre of St. Louis is entitled to respect.

The building has just been completed; the first performance to be held was this week. Here is a theater with a stage almost as big as the auditorium. One of the main drawbacks in Little theatre construction in the past has been the small size of the stage. In the minds of designers there seems to have lingered some idea that the size of the stage ought to bear some relation to the size of the house; and when the house was cut down to a third or a quarter of the usual size, the stage suffered accordingly. In this theater the stage is as wide as the widest part of the pit, and more than half as deep.

All the latest mechanical devices for handling scenery have been installed, and the "loft", where the various settings of scenery are swung while out of use, is of dimensions that compared to the size of the house are really immense. There are all facilities for handling scenic effects of the most elaborate realistic sort, although the new playhouse will doubtless go in for a fair share of the simple effects in setting and background that are beginning to take hold on the more sophisticated producers of Europe.

The auditorium of this Little Theatre has some novel mechanical effects of its own. The seating space is divided into two sections—the gallery, with seats for 90 people, and the main floor with 260 chairs. Under ordinary conditions the main floor is level, but when a play is on, the rear part of the floor rises on hydraulic jacks to let the holders of rear seats look over the heads of those farther forward. This arrangement allows the auditorium to be used for art exhibitions or social purposes, when it is not being used for a theater.

A novel system of lighting has been worked out by Mr. Bassett Jones, who is in charge of the lighting effects in the Washington Square players theater in New York. The lighting in the St. Louis Little Theatre will be a reproduction of a daylight effect, coming through a glass arch in the ceiling. Mr. Jones, who also was responsible for the effective lighting in the original "Peter Pan" production, has devised the stage lighting system for the new playhouse, and in connection with the modern ideas in scenic devices which will be carried out, some interesting results can be looked for.

The company whose performances will dedicate this elaborate and luxurious little playhouse is also home product of St. Louis, so that the city will be able to point to the theater at the end of the first play and claim the whole from stage to star, as the an institution. The company will put on a series of ten performances, including both American and continental drama, full length and one-act pieces. The choice of plays covers a wide range, but holds pretty faithfully to work which was written without an eye to the box-office.

Besides this company, organized of professional actors by a local drama society, the new stage is intended to be used by the Artists' Guild itself and by similar associations who care to put on drama of the artistic sort. It will furnish a home for touring Little theatre companies, which are apparently destined to become more and more a feature of the theatrical landscape. All performances will be conducted on the subscription plan—seats will be subscribed for in advance, so far as possible, preferably in the form of season tickets. The house is thus not open to the general public; but the spirit of the people back of the movement is such that anyone who really cares for the best drama and wants to see it will be able to get a seat for some of the Little theatre productions.

St. Louis' Little Theatre is something of a new departure in principle as well as in architecture. It is the result of the generosity and enthusiasm of a few people who have given their money to a project that they believe will make for encouraging the highest tendencies in the drama. This fact of private backing has enabled the theater to supply itself with all the mechanical and decorative appurtenances which the most prosperous popular playhouse could desire. Plays will be staged and acted and costumed in a similar adequate manner. The unusual play will get the benefit of as generous a production as the usual play has been getting. Everyone who cares for the drama will watch the new playhouse with interest, and doubtless try to get a seat when he happens to be in St. Louis.

Whether or no this Little Theatre or all the little theaters on both sides of the Atlantic can do much to change the general standard of the drama is another question. They can and do give a great deal of pleasure to their patrons. But when it is a matter of the dramatic standards of an age and a nation, then the standard of the big playhouse with the "Standing Room Only" sign in front of the door is the one that really counts. Still, the work of the Little Theaters cannot fall of a certain effect, and it is an effect of the right kind.

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 16.—From present indications the hunting season of 1916 in Michigan will break all records for fatalities.

Since the opening of the hunting season, September 1, when duck came in, there have been no less than 12 deaths traceable directly to hunting accidents and one death of a deer while hunting, a report of which was made to the state game commissioner's office and which on his records is classed as a hunting accident.

SHORT LEGISLATIVE SESSION FAVORED BY GOV-ELECT COX

Will Ask Assembly to Continue Democratic Program of 1st Term.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—"I favor a very short session of the legislature this winter," said Governor-elect Cox. "The demand now is not for more new laws, but for an honest and sympathetic enforcement of the laws passed during my first administration. I want to devote myself for the next two years to a conscientious and rigid enforcement of those progressive measures," continued Cox.

Governor Cox will ask the legislature to provide for the enlargement of the state institution for feeble-minded, now over-crowded; arrange for early beginning of construction of new penitentiary in Madison county, and adopt an amendment to the state workmen's compensation act prohibiting liability insurance companies from competing with the state. Cox is in favor of an absent voters' law, and will support legislative effort to relieve financially embarrassed cities, providing the Democratic party's pledge to preserve the Smith one percent act is not violated.

"The best minds in Ohio haven't yet been able to work out a solution to relieve our cities," declared Cox. "I'm going to approach the subject with great caution and be guided by the very best information obtainable."

NEW LIMPETS STOCK.

Everyone is familiar with the saying "to stick like a limpet," but there are not so many who know how it is that a limpet is able to stick as it does to the rocks upon which it passes its existence. The creature is able, by means of the central portion of its body, which can be raised independently of the edge or frill which surrounds it, to create a vacuum, much in the same way that a piece of soft wet leather can be made to adhere to a smooth surface by pressing on all its air.

WASHINGTON Nov. 16.—Political and civic leaders here already are making plans for the second inauguration of Woodrow Wilson on March 5, 1917. President Wilson within a few days will be asked to appoint an inaugural chairman. Democratic leaders are practically unanimous in the opinion that Mr. Wilson will also sanction the inaugural ball plans, and they are now discussing tentative arrangements for continuing this time-honored custom.

The inaugural ball would be the first big public social gathering of the administration at which the "first lady of the land" would meet prominent men and women from all parts of the United States. As Mrs. Wilson has been a resident of Washington for many years she is familiar with the ball custom, and it is predicted by social leaders that she will graciously accept as her duty such an occasion to herald a new social season in the national capital.

The inaugural balls are held in the court of the pension office, the old place in the capital large enough to accommodate the throngs who attend. As soon as President Wilson names the inaugural chairman and indicates his willingness to attend the inaugural ball, local committee will begin their work of preparing for the event.

From states throughout the union applications for hotel reservations are pouring in. Scores of requests are coming from democratic marching clubs. Hotel proprietors say that the number of early reservations made indicates that Washington may be called upon to entertain one of the largest gatherings ever brought here to witness the elaborate inaugural ceremonies.

1. Seize the close of this story for a biographical quiz on Paul, his work, his character, and what we have learned from this study of his life.

2. What was the extent of Paul's mission? (Acts 9:15). How did the apostles come to realize that they were sent to all the nations?

3. Why did the Jews reject Jesus as their Messiah? (Luke 4:29). What did Paul finally conclude that the gospel meant for the Jewish nation, and for the other nations? 28:25-28.

4. V. 1. How did Paul spend the time during his imprisonment? How would you spend your time in such a case?

5. Are there any people who do not need encouragement? Is a patriot bound always to stand up for his own country?

6. Was it a hindrance or advantage to the cause of Christ to have Paul a prisoner in Rome?

7. Compare Paul with other men of the Christian centuries.

8. Golden Text. Why was Paul not ashamed of the gospel? Why we?

9. What encouragement is this study to those who feel handicapped by lack of education, money, time and strength?

Sunday School Forum.

1. How long should a teacher hold office?

As long as the teacher is efficient; but no teacher should be selected for more than a year at a time.

2. What special use can the Sunday school make of Thanksgiving?

Let the theme for the opening service of the Sunday school, the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving, be "gratitude," thus voicing the thought of thanksgiving in song, scripture reading, prayer and a short talk. Some schools make special thanksgiving offerings either in money or provisions; others render a special harvest thanksgiving service in the place of the regular preaching service, each class making a special offering expressive of thanksgiving. A home coming social Thanksgiving evening may be planned either by the entire school or by classes.

Inaugural Bill Plans Making In Capital

WASHINGTON Nov. 16.—Political and civic leaders here already are making plans for the second inauguration of Woodrow Wilson on March 5, 1917. President Wilson within a few days will be asked to appoint an inaugural chairman. Democratic leaders are practically unanimous in the opinion that Mr. Wilson will also sanction the inaugural ball plans, and they are now discussing tentative arrangements for continuing this time-honored custom.

The inaugural ball would be the first big public social gathering of the administration at which the "first lady of the land" would meet prominent men and women from all parts of the United States. As Mrs. Wilson has been a resident of Washington for many years she is familiar with the ball custom, and it is predicted by social leaders that she will

READING DICKENS

"I CANNOT READ DICKENS!" How many people make this confession, with a front of brass, and seem not to know? Andrew Lang says in one of his "Essays in Literature," "how poor a figure they cut! George Eliot says that a difference of taste in jokes is a great cause of domestic discomfort. A difference in taste in books, when it is decided and vigorous, breaks many a possible friendship, and nips many a young liking in the bud. I would not willingly seem intolerant. A man may not like Sophocles, may speak disrespectfully of Virgil, and even sneer at Herodotus, and yet may be endured. But he or she (it is usually she) who condemns Scott, and 'cannot read Dickens,' is a person with whom I would fain have no further converse. If she be a lady, and if one meets her at dinner, she must of course be borne with, and 'suffered gladly.' But she has dug a gulf that nothing can bridge; she may be fair, clever and popular, but she is Anathema."

"But this admission does not mean," Mr. Lang continues, "that one is sealed of the tribe of Charles—that one is a Dickensite pure and simple, convinced and devout—any more than Mr. Matthew Arnold was a Wordsworthian. Dickens has many such worshippers, especially (and this is an argument in favor of the faith) among those who knew him in his life. He must have had wonderful charm; for his friends in life are his literary partisans, his uncompromising partisans, even to this day. They will have no half-hearted admiration, and scout him who tries to speak of Dickens as of an artist not flawless, no less than they scorn him who cannot read Dickens at all. At one time this honorable enthusiasm (as among Wordsworthians) took the shape of 'endless imitation.' That is over; only here and there is an imitator of the master left in the land. All his own genius was needed to carry his mannerisms; the mannerisms without the genius were an armor that no devoted David had proved, that none could wear with success."

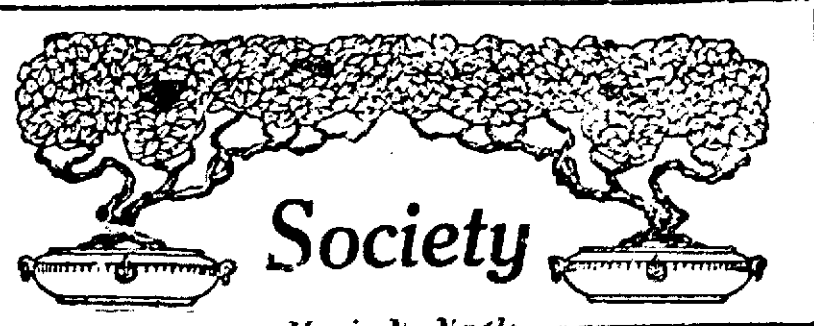

"Of all great writers since Scott, Dickens is probably the man to whom the world owes most gratitude. 'A vast hope has passed across the world,' says Alfred de Musset; we may say that with Dickens a happy smile, a joyous laugh, went round this earth. To make us laugh so frequently, so inextinguishably, so kindly—that is his great good deed. It will be said, and with a great deal of truth, that he has put us with pity and terror as well as with laughter. But it is becoming plain that his command of tears is less assured than of old, and I cannot honestly regret that some of his pathos—not all, by any means—is losing its charm and the certainty of appeal. Dickens' humor was rarely too obvious; it was essentially personal, original, quaint, unexpected, and his own. His pathos was not infrequently derived from sources open to all the world, and capable of being drawn from by very commonplace writers. Mrs. Heccher Stowe and the author of 'Misunderstood,' once made some people weep like anything by these simple means. Ouida can do it; plenty of people can do it. Dickens lives by virtue of what none but he can do: by virtue of Sairey Gamp, and Sam Weller, and Dick Swiveller, and Mr. Squeers, with a thousand other old friends, of whom we can never weary."

Faith is more than a mental decision; it is a surrender of the will. It is more than a verdict; it is the execution of the verdict.—John Henry Jowett.

As a virtuoso body the Philadelphia symphony orchestra, which, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, will give a brilliant concert on Monday evening, Nov. 27, in Memorial hall, is famous throughout the United States for the leaders of its various choirs. Most people are familiar with the importance which the violins and various wind instruments play in the orchestra, but do not always appreciate the significance of some of the percussion instruments, and yet the percussion section, or the "battery" as it is called, is a very important part of the orchestra and the drum player or the tympanist as the official title runs, not only has to be a great drummer, but a great artist as well, for his work can make or mar the evening's pleasure. Fortunately for the Philadelphia orchestra, its tympanist, Oscar Schwarz, is a well-known as the leading tympanist in America. He was secured by the late Fritz Scheel from the Royal opera at St. Petersburg, Russia. It was with great difficulty that Mr. Schwarz was secured from the opera, as he was held in the same high esteem in Russia as in Philadelphia.

When Mr. Schwarz first came to Philadelphia he created a sensation in the orchestra by his wonderful playing in the overture, "Romeo and Juliet," by Tchaikowsky. When he had finished his remarkable roll on the tympani the entire orchestra applauded him with great enthusiasm—an action which is seldom accorded a member of an orchestra in rehearsal by his colleagues. Mr. Schwarz is of a quiet and reserved disposition and extremely modest (which is also a rare condition with his particular instrument), and the secret of his great success is the serious consideration which he gives to all parts which he plays no matter how apparently insignificant they may seem to be to others. He has played in all the leading cities of Germany and other countries of Europe, some of the musical directors and the cities they represent being as follows: F. Mottl, Karlsruhe; Treckler, Dresden; Sauer, Coblenz; Frischman, Hanover; Jarnefelt, Wiberg (Finland); Galkin, Penlovska (Russia); Colonne, Paris; Rimsky-Korsakov, Glazounow and many others. In Mr. Schwarz the Philadelphia has an artist of whom all may be justly proud.

That Allen county will soon have a nation wide reputation as a music center seems to be a foregone conclusion. With the Women's Music club of Lima having one of the largest membership of any music club in the United States, and doing as much for music in Lima and vicinity as it is, and with the Bluffton College music course, which are also annual events, Allen county is more than fortunate.

A number of Lima people plan to take in some of the concerts of the Bluffton courses, the second of which takes place this evening, and is the Zollner String Quartet, the well known chamber music organization.

Floral Guild members were entertained yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Blackburn. Roll call was answered with "Thanksgiving Thoughts" by twenty-six members. After the business session in which committees reported and plans were made for the Christmas charity work, the guild enjoyed a social hour. Mrs. E. L. Guests for the afternoon included Mrs. John Wolfe, Mrs. Victor W. Bond, Mrs. P. R. Hoagland, Mrs. John Hawisher, Mrs. George Quail, Mrs. J. K. Bannister, Mrs. Frank Sealts and Mrs. Charles Bond.

Woman's Board of Managers of the City hospital met at the hospital yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. The meeting was spent in plans for future activity and sewing.

Yesterday noon marked the most important social event of the convention of the Ohio Suffragists, which was a luncheon served in the church parlors of the Trinity church by the women of the church. The tables were decorated in the suffrage colors, yellow and white, the whole being carried out in streamers of crepe paper, candles, and yellow chrysanthemums.

The speakers' table was placed on a platform at one end of the room. Immediately after the luncheon five

FAUROT—"KATINKA" TONIGHT.

There have been musical plays with scenes laid in Russia, and there have been musical plays with scenes laid in Turkey, and there have been musical plays, more numerous than the other two put together, with scenes laid in Vienna, but it has been reserved for "Katinka," which Arthur Hammerstein will present at the Tauror opera house tonight, to combine these three widely separated and distinct localities into a single evening's entertainment. The combination of the plot which is more closely woven interesting than is found in the ordinary musical production Otto Hauerbach, who wrote the play, has led his characters from a wedding feast in Yalta, Russia, to the streets of Old Stamboul, Turkey, and thence to a brilliant cafe in Vienna. In the staging of the piece, Mr. Hammerstein has been careful to catch and preserve throughout each act the atmosphere and spirit of the particular locality in which the particular scene transpires. As a result, the play has exercised the same care in the composition of the music, and familiar strains of each locality have been woven into the various compositions as themes.

ORPHEUM.

As a special feature on the new bill which opened at a matinee this afternoon the program will offer Rex Adams and company in "The Night Hawks," an echo from life's other side. "Night Hawks" was written by I. K. Friedman, the well known newspaper man and author, whose stories and articles have been appearing in the Saturday Evening Post and other periodicals. This is a clever playlet full of humor, action and color, and may be described as a vivid picture of life at its truest in the underworld. Its exciting and rapidly changing situations center about the adroit attempts of Joe Daniels to evade the police and escape from their clutches with Kate, the girl he loves. The dramatic counterplot is furnished by the wily efforts of a cab driver when love makes jealous, to frustrate Joe. The scene is laid in the wine-room of Mix, a saloonkeeper, whose kindness of heart prompts him to aid Joe and his girl. A very interesting story, dramatically told. As an added attraction Warren and Connelly and three other high class vaudeville acts complete the bill.

Drop Kick By the Harvard Fullback Decides Big Sum

By Frank G. Menke.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Often times it is the little things—an inch of space, for instance—that frequently decide vital issues; that shift fortunes from one ownership to another. All of which brings us around to a discussion of that Harvard-Princeton combat on Saturday. Probably $300,000 was at stake on the outcome of that battle, and a drop kick by Horween, the Crimson fullback, decided it, 3 to 0 in favor of Harvard.

Back and forth the battle raged for two periods and part of a third. Finally Harvard had the ball on Princeton's 17 yard line. It realized how futile would be attempts to crash through the powerful Tiger line. It knew that its only chance for victory lay in a field goal score. So Horween dropped back to the 25 yard line to make a try for a three point score.

The ball was passed to him—a bit high. Before Horween could set himself off the kick, the Tigers broke through and were charging at him. Horween had to act quickly. He dropped the ball, booted it and saw it just clear the heads of the crushing horde. Slowly, tantalizingly, the ball floated on its course. Ten yards or so from its mark it reached the top of its flight and slowly it began to descend.

Did the ball have enough "lift" left to clear the bar, or would it fall below? Forty thousand breathless spectators watched it—spellbound. And $300,000 was involved. On and on the ball traveled, but with slackening momentum—and—falling—falling.

And then it reached its mark. The far end of the ball cleared the bar. The other touched it. For the bar, out fraction of a second it hesitated as to its future course—with about $125,000 Princeton money hanging in the balance. And then it fell—back of the Tiger line!

Brown's Wonderful Halfback.

Brown's splendid record of seven successive triumphs this season has been made possible largely because of the playing of Pollard, the negro halfback, whose work makes him stand out, as one of the most remarkable players on the gridiron today.

Pollard has amazing strength, great speed and an agile brain. He is the hardest man to stop that has played in the east his year. He has a zig-zag way of running ends that baffled the Yale tacklers last Saturday just as it thwarted the other Brown foemen. And he is game to the core.

In that last half when the Yale line was beaten to a pulp and its team routed, it was Pollard who did it. Used in almost every play in the first part of the game, the negro boy came back in the second and led the hosts of Providence in their untoppable charge against Yale. Pollard was here there and everywhere. He cracked the line for five yards, three yards, six yards, ten yards. He ran ends in a way that stunned the Yale rooters. He executed several long sprints, and time and again performed his zig-zag that carried him from one side of the field to the other, through a field of Yale tacklers. And always it was for a gain.

And then when Pollard, battled, bleeding, but still urged on by his sublime fighting spirit, was ordered to the sidelines—after the game had been won—he pleaded to stay longer, asked for the chance to continue in the battle and try to make the Brown victory all the greater, even though he was suffering agony from the hurts that had come to him.

Brown Is a Feared Team

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—

Percy Haughton drew the reins over the Harvard football team today and set it down with only enough work to keep in condition for Brown, Saturday. The wily mentor did not wish to have any of his players injured, as he evidently figures all his strength will be needed against the team that beat Yale badly. There will be no important shifts in the lineup.

SUGAR BEETS FOR DAIRY COWS.

Sugar beets and mangels tend to increase milk production when fed to dairy cows, but experiments conducted at the Ohio Experiment Station show that corn silage is far more economical to feed. Because of this fact these dairy experts do not advise the feeding of beets except for high records where cost is a minor consideration, or where the number of cows is too small to permit the use of a silo.

Cows fed beets had keen appetites and at more food because of the stimulating effects of this root crop. After 10 years' work the Ohio station has found that two pounds of dry matter can be produced in the form of silage at less cost than one pound in the form of beets. Convenience in feeding is in favor of silage.

LOST IN BLIZZARD TWO DAYS, IS FOUND

ELY, Minn., Nov. 16.—Lost in the Minnesota woods for five days during which he was stalked continuously by wolves and was compelled to keep moving during a two days' blizzard, Horace E. Jackson, wealthy Chicago board of trade broker, is recovering today following the rescue late last night. A tiny point of flame marking the fire which he had built in his nightly defense against the wolf-like wolves, led a handful of the hundreds of rescuers who have been searching for three days to the place where Jackson, half unconscious from fatigue, hunger and exposure, was found in the snow.

"BILL" DONOVAN HAS AN IDEA TO AID POOR MOUNDMAN

WILLIAM DONOVAN

William Donovan, manager of the Yankees, is out with an idea by which he expects to turn the tables on the wise manager while his pinch hitter is at the bat and a new pitcher is sent to the mound. He does not object to the measure requiring a change pitcher to pitch until the batter facing him has either been put out or has reached first base, but says why not subject a relief batter to the same requirements? If a new pitcher has to stay out there until the batter has been disposed of, why not make a pinch hitter stay up there until he has been disposed of, is Donovan's argument. As it is now, he contends, the rule permits the side at bat to manipulate pinch batters without a corresponding privilege to the field side to manipulate pitchers.

NAPOLEON AND A SUBMARINE.

The idea of submarine navigation is not so modern as many people imagine. When Napoleon was banished to St. Helena a notorious smuggler named Johnstone conceived the idea of assisting the dethroned monarch to escape. In Scott's "Life of Napoleon" he says: "A submarine vessel was to be the means of effecting this enterprise. It was thought that by sinking the vessel during the daytime she might escape the notice of the British cruisers, and being raised at night, might approach the guarded rock without discovery. The vessel was actually begun in one of the building yards upon the Thames, but, the peculiarity of her construction, having aroused suspicion she was seized by the government."—Exchange.

Grace Five Downs Fast Piqua Team By a 54-24 Count

The opening basketball game of the season for this city was pulled off at the Grace church gym last evening, with the local church leaguers piling up 54 points on their opponents, the Piqua Christians. However, the visitors succeeded in pulling, through with 24 counters to their credit. A crowd of more than 200 fans witnessed the game.

At the end of the first half the Grace basketbatters were on the long end of a 23-12 count. After a few minutes of play in the second period the Grace lads began to dump the ball in the basket quite frequently, and went so far in the lead that it made it almost impossible for the visitors to overcome them.

Bacome, Grant and Stelpton caged most of the baskets for the locals, assisted by the other members of the team. Bowersock's work on the defense stamps him as one of the best guards seen on a local floor. In the preliminary, the Grace seconds defeated a team from the South Side church of Christ, 19 to 4. The representative Grace five will go to St. Marys tomorrow night to take on the team of that place. The teams lined up last night as follows:

PIQUA Pos. GRACE

He got the teeth, but at the same time he was arrested on charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. He was held in bonds of $750 for an adjourned hearing and was to fail, being unable to furnish the bonds. Gallagher was not seriously injured.

SALVATION ARMY SUPPLIES SNAKES' MICE DIET.
CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Many strange requests have been made of the salvation Army but never before has it been asked to find mice for rattlesnakes. Lieutenant Colonel Martensen was at first much distraught as the result of the request. It came from a woman—blonde and beautiful—who walked into his office.

"I have snakes," she said without preliminaries.

"You certainly don't look it," said the colonel.

"You misunderstand me," she said. "I mean real snakes. Big ones—rattlers. They like rats and mice to eat. I can't catch 'em. The nasty things! I couldn't bear to touch one. It makes me shudder to think of it. What I want is mice. Four dozen a week. Perhaps some of the boys or girls are trying to help would like to earn a little money. I will pay 50 cents a dozen." The order is now being regularly filled.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD BREAD.
The November Farm and Fireside says:

Because it is difficult to maintain the proper temperature, winter is the poorest season of the year for successful bread-making. The temperature of the dough should range between 70 and 90 degrees, depending on the season. The dough should be kept at 70 degrees in summer and 90 degrees in winter.

"Heavy bread is caused by unfavorable temperature, old yeast, or the use of poor flour—that is, flour which does not contain the proper amount of gluten. Keep the temperature below 45 degrees and the action of the yeast will be retarded until a higher temperature is maintained. Continued low temperature means heavy bread."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the system and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. He added his belief that the railroad managers are "whistling to keep their courage up," or are trying to scare the public into sympathizing with the roads. He said the conference with the managers was intended to reach a working agreement on the rearrangement of schedules under the Adamson law, and the men were astonished to find that the managers purposed to cut out all mileage and extras and nail the wages down tight on a flat eight-hour day basis, limiting all increases the tyranny of the word 'imported,' says Mrs. Thompson, "and write a Christmas message this year that will be a declaration of industrial independence for this nation."

Mrs. Thompson adds that to observe this rule would be an excellent lesson to the youth of the land, teaching that the first idea of industrial preparedness is to patronize home industries.

"They told us that all the injunction suits will be filed within the next ten days. I guess there will be 5,000 of them. They had expected us, they said, to have counsel to defend the suits. We said, 'No', adding that the suits concern the government directly and not us. On

It was said yesterday by the legal departments of the New York Central and New Haven that the 200 main line railways in the country could join in one suit to test the constitutionality of the law were it not for the penalty clause. Under that clause the attorney general collects heavy fines for violations of the provisions. Consequently, any road that does not separately ask for an injunction is liable to the penalties between Jan. 1 and the time when the supreme court validates the law. If it does so, the attorney General Gregory has not decided what course to take in defending the injunction suits. He may contest every suit or stand on a single test case. The Great Northern filed an action yesterday in St. Paul, and the Illinois Central one at Chicago.
